HOUSE RESOLUTION 91
By DeBerry J

A RESOLUTION to create a special committee to study highway safety and to draft a comprehensive highway safety act.

WHEREAS, the safety of this state's system of highways and other routes is of paramount concern to all Tennesseans; and

WHEREAS, the rate of traffic accidents, fatalities and injuries on Tennessee highways has been increasing at an alarming rate; and

WHEREAS, between 1989 and 1993, traffic fatalities in Tennessee increased by 7.54% and the number of persons injured in traffic accidents increased by 3.94%; and

WHEREAS, in 1993 alone, Tennessee experienced 1,170 traffic fatalities as a result of 1,041 fatal traffic accidents; and

WHEREAS, in that same year, some 76,490 persons were injured in 48,909 personal injury accidents, and property damage accidents totaled 100,985; and

WHEREAS, in the years between 1989 and 1993, an average of 47.3% of all traffic fatalities in Tennessee were alcohol-related, and an average of 47% of all fatal crashes were alcohol-related; and

WHEREAS, in addition to the abuse of alcohol and other controlled substances, other major contributing factors to traffic accidents are various forms of unsafe and reckless driving, road conditions, and weather conditions; and

WHEREAS, although the aforementioned statistics are indeed appalling, Tennessee's state and local police agencies have done an admirable job of enforcing our laws relative to highway safety; and

WHEREAS, the enforcement of highway safety laws is in and of itself a monumental task, and law enforcement's efforts have been hindered by a statutory scheme that has been enacted and amended in a piecemeal fashion; and

WHEREAS, each year, this General Assembly considers a wide variety of bills relative to highway safety, including legislation on DUI offenses, vehicular manslaughter and vehicular homicide, speed limits, mandated motor vehicle safety equipment, restrictions on certain classifications of drivers and a legion of others; a great deal of this legislation is subsequently enacted; and

WHEREAS, while the goal of such legislation is indeed laudable, to improve highway safety in Tennessee, there has been to date no unifying philosophy or purpose in the consideration and enactment of such legislation; and

WHEREAS, there exists a tremendous need for a comprehensive re-examination of our highway safety laws in order to bring unity and clarity to both the statutory and enforcement aspects of highway safety in Tennessee; and

WHEREAS, a comprehensive review of our highway safety laws should involve concerned parties from all walks of life in order to better represent the public's interest; and

WHEREAS, citizens have a right to feel safe and secure when driving on this state's highways, and this General Assembly should take immediate action to improve highway safety in Tennessee; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF THE ONE-HUNDREDTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE, That there is hereby created a special committee to study highway safety in Tennessee and to perform a comprehensive examination of highway safety statutes and enforcement.
